Performance

Performance

Based on transaction prices, the fund's return was -2.89%.

All three trends ended up in negative territory in April. While our biggest trend, Digital Enablers, held up relatively best with a decline of 2.5%, Robotics & Automation suffered the largest setback, giving up 6.0%. Secure Digital Infrastructure also ended up in negative territory. The trend returned -5.0%, as cybersecurity stocks took a step back due to worries that sector peer Tenable's disappointing first quarter might be a forerunner of things to come in the rest of the cybersecurity domain. The top three stocks for April, measured by contribution to return, were Intuitive Surgical (better-than-expected results), SAP (increased confidence in the company's successful cloud transition) and Microsoft (stronger-than-expected first quarter). The bottom three stocks were CyberArk (caught up in cybersecurity jitters after Tenable cut its outlook; no company-specific news), Infineon (concerns on semiconductor pricing later in the year) and Microchip Technology (idem).

Market development

Once again, the earnings season is upon us. Investors cautiously welcomed mostly positive earnings reports, especially from the big technology firms, which suggest that companies are still doing well in the face of persistent inflation, higher interest rates and growing recession fears. Equity markets grinded higher in local currencies last month, with large caps doing most of the heavy lifting. However, macroeconomic uncertainties remain high in the face of central banks' dogged pursuit of monetary tightening, while inflation has already peaked. The risk of a policy error forcing a recession is very real. Undoubtedly, this will have further economic consequences as commercial lending is reigned in over the coming quarters. Last month, semiconductor and cybersecurity companies were among the victims of resurfacing worries about weakening near-term fundamentals. We recognize the risks of near-term weakness in results, but are still convinced of the long-term opportunity in these stocks and are therefore reluctant to trade them based on short-term considerations, which may very well already be adequately discounted by the market.

Expectation of fund manager

The business world is constantly looking for improvements in productivity, efficiency and flexibility. The combination and confluence of increasing connectivity, digitization of products and services, and digitalization of business processes is providing abundant opportunities to make tremendous progress in these respects across virtually every industry. It is this digital transformation of business enterprise that Robeco Digital Innovations is designed to capture. We continue to believe that the secular trends outlined above remain valid and, if anything, have been reinforced by the Covid pandemic. In addition to seeking productivity and efficiency gains, minimizing exposure to human vulnerabilities, such as a pandemic, has come to the forefront as a forceful argument to expedite the digital transformation of business. The long-run prospects are very bright, but the short-run outlook has turned uncertain, as a hawkish monetary policy to counter inflationary pressures may curtail economic growth or even cause a recession. We therefore proceed with caution in the near term, while remaining optimistic for the longer term.

Sustainability

The fund incorporates sustainability in the investment process through exclusions, ESG integration, engagement and voting. The fund does not invest in issuers that are in breach of international norms or where activities have been deemed detrimental to society following Robeco's exclusion policy. Financially material ESG factors are integrated in the bottom-up investment analysis to assess existing and potential ESG risks and opportunities. In the stock selection the fund limits exposure to elevated sustainability risks. In addition, where a stock issuer is flagged for breaching international standards in the ongoing monitoring, the issuer will become subject to engagement. Lastly, the fund makes use of shareholder rights and applies proxy voting in accordance with Robeco's proxy voting policy.

Investment policy

Robeco Digital Innovations is an actively managed fund that invests worldwide in equities from developed and emerging countries. The selection of these stocks is based on a fundamental analysis. The fund's objective is to achieve a better return than the index. The fund promotes E&S (i.e. Environmental and Social) characteristics within the meaning of Article 8 of the European Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation, integrates sustainability risks in the investment process and applies Robeco's Good Governance policy. The fund applies sustainability indicators, including but not limited to, normative, activity-based and region-based exclusions, proxy voting and engagement. The fund invests in a number of structural growth trends on the production side of the economy, such as robots and automation, digital enablers and secure digital infrastructure. The fund managers try to select stocks of the structural winners within these trends. The majority of stocks selected will be components of the Benchmark, but stocks outside the Benchmark may be selected too. The investment policy is not constrained by a benchmark but the fund may use a benchmark for comparison purposes. The fund can deviate substantially from the issuer, country and sector weightings of the Benchmark. There are no restrictions on the deviation from the Benchmark. The Benchmark is a broad market weighted index that is not consistent with the ESG characteristics promoted by the fund.
