Performance commentary

Based on transaction prices, the fund's return was 4.64%.

In May, the portfolio had a strong absolute return, though slightly lagging the global benchmark. Sector-wise, our positioning in utilities and materials helped performance most. The energy, technology and industrials sectors, however, struggled most. Memory power house Micron contributed most in May, surging over +50% on the AI-driven memory 'super cycle' in which high-bandwidth (HBM) keeps outstripping supply. Tight DRAM and NAND supply keep pushing prices sharply higher, lifting margins to new highs. Micron management also mentioned that despite these price surges, orders keep coming in, with its capacity already being sold out for 2026 and most of 2027. Cyber security leader Palo Alto was also a strong contributor to performance, lifted by strong demand for AI-era security and strong platform consolidation momentum, most notably the acquisitions of CyberArk and Chronosphere in the case of Palo Alto. Rising AI-related threats reinforced the structural demand story, resulting in a strong take-up of its next-gen suite of security software.

Market development

Risk-on behavior persists after the US-Iran ceasefire and markets continue to rotate toward AI-led growth buckets, moving global equity markets to new highs (+5.1% in EUR; +4.6% in USD). From a regional perspective, strong performance from mega caps helped EM outperform developed markets, though the US continued to do very well too, delivering nearly double-digit returns for the second month in a row. Europe lagged, although it picked up slightly toward the end of the month. It seems that very strong quarterly earnings and renewed enthusiasm around tech and AI kept all the nervousness around oil, central banks and geopolitics at bay for the time being. The AI capex cycle remains relentless indeed, with areas such as memory going parabolic, lifting other parts in the value chain – be it power, cooling, optical, or semi-cap equipment – higher as well. A caveat to this is that such strong growth is usually synonymous with strong inflation concerns. The first Federal Reserve committee meeting (FOMC) under newly installed Chair Kevin Warsh in mid-June will, therefore, be a potential 'make-or-break' moment when it comes to rate expectations.

Expectation of fund manager

The past month clearly dismissed the old market wisdom to 'sell in May', as stocks kept grinding higher. The reality on the ground, however, is that there's still an unresolved energy shock. Historically, such shocks fuel stagflation risks down the line through higher costs, demand destruction and, hence, weaker growth. AI-driven earnings growth might dominate near-term market direction, but clearly, in case the conflict persists, a stagflation regime might trump AI benefits. Therefore, it seems like markets assume a quick, genuine de-escalation that decisively knocks down oil prices, takes US yields closer to 4% and with it, extend the equity party. Several very large IPOs, including SpaceX, OpenAI and Anthropic that are coming up, add to this crowding effect. The base case from here is still an up-but-bumpy path for global equities, with the rates-geopolitics-AI triangle as the key swing factor. That said, with stretched valuations, any disappointment on peace talks, growth outlook or tone by central banks could translate into air pockets.

Top 10 largest holdings

Our top active position is SLB, a leading US equipment and service provider to the energy industry. Its positions across offshore, deepwater but also in areas such as carbon capture, geothermal and lithium extraction, will provide a solid foundation for future growth. Taiwan Semiconductor (TSMC) is our second-largest weight, being the world's largest semiconductor manufacturer with foundries mostly in operation in Taiwan so far, but it has been actively expanding capacity in the US. As one of the key suppliers into the semi end-markets, prospects continue to look very bright, still supported by attractive valuation. Palo Alto Network, which is a cyber security software company, rounds off our top three of active positions. Palo Alto sits across the security stack from firewalls to deep into network, Cloud and software end-points. AI and geopolitics have again raised the importance of running highly guarded cyber security environments, which benefits Palo Alto.

Sector allocation

The portfolio is overweight in sectors that have a high return on invested capital, a good FCF yield and a good sustainability profile. We are currently overweight in communication services, information technology, consumer discretionary and healthcare. We are underweight in consumer staples, industrials, materials and utilities. After the underperformance of quality names in 2025, we feel that the portfolio is in a good position to benefit from a recovery in this segment.

Regional allocation

We have relatively neutral regional weights. We have moved slightly lower in weight in Europe, as we see political turmoil in France and the UK, leading to potentially higher credit rates. We have added to our US weight but remain underweight North America. We have a neutral position in Asia-Pacific, with a slight underweight of Japan and an overweight position in Emerging Asia.

Currency allocation

The fund pursues a moderately active currency allocation policy. We hedge most currencies back to a benchmark position.

Reference

1. SDG Impact Alignment

This distribution across SDG scores shows the portfolio weight allocated to companies with a positive, negative and neutral impact alignment with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) based on Robeco's SDG Framework. The framework utilizes a three-step approach to assess a company's impact alignment with the relevant SDGs and assign a total SDG score. The score ranges from positive to negative impact alignment with levels from high, medium or low impact alignment. Only holdings mapped as corporates are included in the figures.

2. Environmental Footprint

Environmental footprint expresses the total resource consumption of the portfolio per mUSD invested. Each assessed company's footprint is calculated by normalizing resources consumed by the company's enterprise value including cash (EVIC). We aggregate these figures to portfolio level using a weighted average, multiplying each assessed portfolio constituent's footprint by its respective position weight. The equivalent factors that are used for comparison between the portfolio and index (where applicable) represent European averages and are based on third-party sources combined with own estimates. As such, the figures presented are intended for illustrative purposes and are purely an indication. Only holdings mapped as corporates are included in the figures.

3. Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating

The chart displays the portfolio's Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating. This is calculated by multiplying each portfolio component's Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating by its respective portfolio weight. The distribution across Sustainalytics ESG Risk levels chart shows the portfolio allocations broken into Sustainalytics' five ESG risk levels: negligible (0-10), low (10-20), medium (20-30), high (30-40) and severe (40+), providing an overview of portfolio exposure to the different ESG risk levels.

Only holdings mapped as corporates are included in the figures.

4. Exclusions

The charts display the degree of adherence to exclusion applied by Robeco. Thresholds are based on revenues unless otherwise indicated. For more information about the exclusion policy and which level applies, please refer to the Exclusion Policy and Exclusion List available on Robeco.com.

Source: Robeco. We use several data input sources such as Sustainalytics, RSPO (Roundtable on Sustainable Palm Oil), World Bank, Freedom House, Fund for Peace and International Sanctions. Policy document available: Exclusion Policy

5. Engagement

Robeco distinguishes between three types of engagement. Value Engagement focuses on long-term issues that are financially material and/or are causing adverse sustainability impacts. The themes can be broken into Environmental, Social, Governance, or Voting-related. SDG Engagement aims to drive a clear and measurable improvement in a company's SDG contribution. Enhanced engagement is triggered by misconduct and focuses on companies severely breaching international standards. The report is based on all companies in the portfolio for which engagement activities have taken place during the past 12 months. Note that companies may be under engagement in multiple categories simultaneously. While the total portfolio exposure excludes double counting, it may not equal the sum of individual category exposures.
