About the fund

Robeco Global Climate Transition Equities is an actively managed sub-fund that invests in stocks across developed and emerging markets across the world. The Sub-fund aims to provide long-term capital growth by investing in assets that contribute to the climate transition. Climate transition pertains to the transitional efforts required to limit global temperature increase to well-below 2°C degrees, aligned with the goals of the Paris Agreement. This is achieved by investing in companies that are making the transition and companies are enabling the transition, as described in the Prospectus.

Performance commentary

Based on transaction prices, the fund's return was 2.65%.

In May, our strategy had a strong absolute return, yet lagged the benchmark. Sector-wise, the main positive contributors were industrials and materials, whereas technology lagged, especially due to underexposure to the memory semi-segment. In terms of stock selection, German semi-play Infineon performed best. It announced a partnership with DG Matrix on silicon-carbide for AI data centers, supporting the structural narrative around power-semis as an AI-infrastructure play. First Solar benefited from the overall breakout of solar stocks, again seen as relative winners in the search for energy independence. Finally, Steel Dynamics continued its solid run, benefiting from a tariff-sheltered US market for steel and aluminum. On the flip side, Cheniere Energy detracted most as the US-Iran ceasefire cooled gas prices, taking out some of the positive momentum that catapulted related names earlier in the year. Siemens Energy had a weak month, too, pulling back mainly on potential oversupply concerns down the road. Finally, HD Hyundai Electric detracted too, despite a spectacular run in the past year as a key beneficiary of grid-equipment, transformer and AI-data center power demand.

Expectation of fund manager

There are plenty of reasons to stay constructive, but we do buckle up for bumps related to heightened inflation concerns. Geopolitics clearly adds another strange twist, reinforcing the energy security bid for renewables and nuclear, but also triggering a pragmatic short-term push for LNG and gas and even coal plant extensions as emergency buffers. The dual track of more fossil investment today to buy time for a bigger transition tomorrow is feeding a more cynical market view. In the near-term, the 'prove it' regime will continue: the energy transition is very much alive, but the market wants receipts. Macro and policy remain the biggest swing factors to watch. Any path to rate hikes or rising supply chain bottlenecks would be a headwind for long duration assets. Hence, equity markets will increasingly distinguish between those who can turn structural demand into ROICs above their rising cost of capital, and those who cannot. In sum, climate transition investing is still in goldilocks mode from a fundamental standpoint, but the market will likely treat the space with more respect for rate sensitivity and less bravado in the most expensive corners of the market.

Top 10 largest holdings

Our number-one active position is Steel Dynamics, a pure-play US steel manufacturer that exclusively uses electric arc furnace (EAF) as way of production. The company is coming out of a period of heavy investment and benefits from higher steel and aluminum prices, which should result in significantly improved free cashflow generation. Infineon is our second-largest active weight and is a German power electronics semiconductor firm, catering to a wide variety of end markets including EVs and large scale renewables projects. Infineon is geared to electrification and AI-driven power demand, with leading positions across GaN and silicon-based power modules. Our top-three active weights is rounded off by Applied Materials, a high-quality semi-cap equipment provider riding the AI and specialty-chip wave, monetizing rising process complexity across logic, memory and advanced packaging.

Sector allocation

We choose to take a broad approach instead of building a narrow thematic portfolio, as we believe all sectors have a role to play in the transition to net zero. This means that this strategy invests in companies that facilitate the transition, as well as in companies that will need to transition themselves.

Country / Region allocation

The fund's largest exposure is in North America, though underweight versus the benchmark. The fund is overweight in Europe and slightly underweight in emerging markets.

Reference

1. SDG Impact Alignment

This distribution across SDG scores shows the portfolio weight allocated to companies with a positive, negative and neutral impact alignment with the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG) based on Robeco's SDG Framework. The framework utilizes a three-step approach to assess a company's impact alignment with the relevant SDGs and assign a total SDG score. The score ranges from positive to negative impact alignment with levels from high, medium or low impact alignment. Only holdings mapped as corporates are included in the figures.

2. Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating

The chart displays the portfolio's Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating. This is calculated by multiplying each portfolio component's Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating by its respective portfolio weight. The distribution across Sustainalytics ESG Risk levels chart shows the portfolio allocations broken into Sustainalytics' five ESG risk levels: negligible (0-10), low (10-20), medium (20-30), high (30-40) and severe (40+), providing an overview of portfolio exposure to the different ESG risk levels.

Only holdings mapped as corporates are included in the figures.

3. Exclusions

The charts display the degree of adherence to exclusion applied by Robeco. Thresholds are based on revenues unless otherwise indicated. For more information about the exclusion policy and which level applies, please refer to the Exclusion Policy and Exclusion List available on Robeco.com.

Source: Robeco. We use several data input sources such as Sustainalytics, RSPO (Roundtable on Sustainable Palm Oil), World Bank, Freedom House, Fund for Peace and International Sanctions. Policy document available: Exclusion Policy

4. Environmental Footprint

Environmental footprint expresses the total resource consumption of the portfolio per mUSD invested. Each assessed company's footprint is calculated by normalizing resources consumed by the company's enterprise value including cash (EVIC). We aggregate these figures to portfolio level using a weighted average, multiplying each assessed portfolio constituent's footprint by its respective position weight. The equivalent factors that are used for comparison between the portfolio and index (where applicable) represent European averages and are based on third-party sources combined with own estimates. As such, the figures presented are intended for illustrative purposes and are purely an indication. Only holdings mapped as corporates are included in the figures.

5. Engagement

Robeco distinguishes between three types of engagement. Value Engagement focuses on long-term issues that are financially material and/or are causing adverse sustainability impacts. The themes can be broken into Environmental, Social, Governance, or Voting-related. SDG Engagement aims to drive a clear and measurable improvement in a company's SDG contribution. Enhanced engagement is triggered by misconduct and focuses on companies severely breaching international standards. The report is based on all companies in the portfolio for which engagement activities have taken place during the past 12 months. Note that companies may be under engagement in multiple categories simultaneously. While the total portfolio exposure excludes double counting, it may not equal the sum of individual category exposures.
