1. Market developments

The AI hardware rally continued in May, this time in overdrive. The MSCI EM Information Technology sector soared 29%, the Korean market gained 35%, and the MSCI Taiwan Index advanced 17%. Several technology stocks delivered eye-catching returns. Custom AI chip designer MediaTek surged 65% after gaining 75% in April. Memory leader SK Hynix added another 82% to its already spectacular run, while index heavyweight TSMC contributed a comparatively modest 10% gain. Beyond technology, however, the story was much weaker. Most sectors declined in value, with energy and utilities posting negative returns. China's struggling platform companies also remained under pressure: Alibaba fell 4%, Tencent lost 8%, and Meituan declined 12%. In factor markets, momentum was the clear winner, with the MSCI EM Momentum Index rising 25%. Value and small-cap stocks lagged the broader market, as large-cap growth companies, dominated by technology names, once again drove the EM equity rally.

2. Performance attribution

In May 2026, our portfolio delivered a strong relative return, outperforming the benchmark by 3.1%. The key contributors to this performance were valuation, momentum, sustainability, and quality, all of which added positively to the fund's returns. Analyst revisions and short-term signals remained neutral during this period.

Over the past 12 months, the strategy has also shown solid outperformance with a relative return of 8.8%. Momentum led the contributions, followed closely by valuation and sustainability, which significantly enhanced the portfolio's performance. Short-term signals and analyst revisions also contributed positively, while quality remained neutral. This consistent performance across multiple factors underscores the strength of our investment strategy.

Source: Robeco Performance Measurement. The figures show relative portfolio returns versus the index. The relative portfolio return is gross of fees, and after transaction costs. It is the sum of the allocation effect and stock selection contribution, excluding cash & others. The relative portfolio return is fully attributed to underlying Robeco factors. In January 2018, the short term signals factor was added to the stock selection model. All stocks in the portfolio and index are ranked on Robeco factors and grouped into five market value-weighted quintiles. The portfolio factor exposures are averages over the previous month. The returns are over the whole period.

3. Positioning

Stock selection is the main driver of the Active Quant model. All position deviations from the benchmark are based in the relative attractiveness of these stocks from a multi-factor perspective as compared to their regional/sector peers. The resulting portfolio is well-diversified with small deviations on sector and country levels, as shown in the figure below.

The fund remains well-positioned towards the model factors. A comparison of various characteristics of the portfolio versus those of its benchmark – the MSCI Emerging Markets Index – shows a consistent picture: the portfolio offers a lower valuation and better quality, momentum and revisions.

To illustrate, the current P/E of the fund is 13.6 compared to 15.8 for the MSCI Emerging Markets Index. In terms of quality, the portfolio has a net buyback yield of 0.2%, while the benchmark shows a negative yield of -0.1%. From a momentum perspective, the portfolio demonstrates a significantly stronger performance with a 12-minus-1 month momentum of 104.5%, compared to 89.0% for the MSCI Emerging Markets Index. Additionally, the portfolio's earnings revisions ratio stands at 74.8%, which is higher than the benchmark's 58.3%.

Given these characteristics, we firmly believe the strategy is well-positioned to continue harvesting the model factor premiums in Emerging Markets.

Source: Robeco, FactSet, MSCI. Figures are holdings-based. The fund aims for a better sustainability profile compared to the benchmark by promoting certain sustainability characteristics within the meaning of Article 8 of the European Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation and integrating sustainability in the investment process. More specifically, the binding elements as per the prospectus and sustainability disclosure (SFDR disclosure) pertain to applying the Robeco Level 2 exclusion list, targeting a Sustainalytics ESG risk rating that is 10% better than the benchmark (the Sustainalytics ESG risk rating offers insight into company-level ESG risk by measuring the size of an organization's unmanaged ESG risk, a lower score refers to a better overall sustainability profile), excluding companies with Severe ESG risk (those with a Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating of greater than 40) unless an investment in a stock with severe ESG risk has been explicitly approved by the dedicated committee comprising sustainable investment, compliance, and risk management specialists overseeing the bottom-up sustainability assessment, and pursuing 30% better carbon footprint than the benchmark (as measured by greenhouse gas emissions) as well as 20% better waste and water footprints than the benchmark.

Table 5 below shows the current main over- and underweights as a result of our bottom-up stock-selection process.

The portfolio's most significant overweights were in Samsung Electronics at 1.31% and SK Square at 1.17%. Conversely, the largest underweights were in Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing at -4.68% and MediaTek at -1.21%.

4. Sustainability profile

The strategy aims to deliver better risk-adjusted returns than the benchmark and simultaneously deliver a better sustainability profile than the benchmark based on specific sustainability characteristics. We integrate sustainability across the investment process, including the binding elements that are discussed below as per the prospectus and sustainability disclosure (SFDR disclosure). The exception to this is within active ownership activities, where voting is a binding element and engagement is a non-binding element.

a. Sustainability integration – a superior risk profile

The Sustainalytics ESG risk rating of the portfolio is aimed to be at least 10% better than that of the index, and this is a binding element in the prospectus of the strategy as described by SFDR. The graph below shows how the portfolio and benchmark score on various levels of ESG risk. In addition to aiming for a 10% lower Sustainalytics ESG risk rating, stocks with a ESG risk rating >40 (labelled as severe risk) are also excluded from the eligible investment universe. The sustainability integration applied in the investment process significantly improves the sustainability risk profile of the portfolio versus the index.

b. Sustainability integration – environmental footprint reduction

The strategy targets environmental footprint reduction. The portfolio footprint for greenhouse gas emissions is aimed to be at least 30% lower than the index at rebalancing. The footprint on waste generation and water use is aimed to be 20% lower than the index at rebalancing. Environmental footprint is a binding element in the prospectus of the strategy as described by SFDR. Depicted below is the environmental footprint ownership per million USD invested in the portfolio on each of these three dimensions, as well as that of the benchmark.

c. Sustainability integration – active ownership: engagement and voting

In addition to environmental footprint reduction, the fund participates in Robeco's voting and engagement programs. Last year, Robeco's Active Ownership team actively voted on more than 7,800 shareholders' meetings. Voting is a binding element in the prospectus of the strategy as described by SFDR. Engagement is the process of exercising our shareholders' rights to improve company behavior for the companies we invest in. Our values-based engagement focuses on financially material sustainability themes with the aim to improve the risk-return profile of the company. Examples of themes are Sound Environmental Management, Environmental Challenges in the Oil & Gas sector, Sound Social Management, Data Privacy, and Good Governance.

d. Sustainability integration – avoiding controversial practices

An extensive values-based exclusions list is implemented according to broad ethical norms. Criteria for exclusion are Controversial weapons, Military contracting, Firearms, Controversial behaviour, Good governance, Anti-money laundering and Counter-terrorism financing, Tobacco, Thermal coal, Oil sands, Artic drilling, Palm oil, and Climate standards. Currently, approximately 89 stocks are excluded representing approximately 4.5% of the MSCI Emerging Markets Index.

e. Sustainability integration – contributing to UN's SDG

Furthermore, we do not invest in stocks that have a high negative score on our proprietary UN Sustainable Development Goals framework, however this sustainability element is not defined as binding in the prospectus of the strategy as described by SFDR. On the contrary, the strategy aims to invests in stocks that have a positive SDG score in a higher proportion than the index, being also a binding element according to SFDR. The portfolio positioning towards the UN SDGs can be seen in Figure 5 below.

Robeco Emerging Markets 3D Active strategy

Robeco QI Emerging Markets 3D Active Equities invests in, on average, 200 emerging markets stocks by applying a quantitative investment strategy. The strategy aims to maximize the excess return versus the benchmark and deliver a superior sustainability profile, within risk constraints. The investment process starts with a factor-based stock selection model. This model consists of multiple long-term factors, comprising the valuation factor (measures such as low price to fundamentals), quality factor (that prefer firms with a profitable operating business and a prudent investment policy), momentum and analyst revisions factors. We also include short-term signals factor, based on the following four themes: price reversals, stock flows, short-term sentiment, and ML/NLP signals. This model produces a quantitative ranking considering all the stocks within the investable universe. In the second step, the Robeco proprietary portfolio construction algorithm aims to optimize the exposure to the predictive power of the model while adhering to high sustainability standards. The portfolio is rebalanced every month.

The fund aims for a better sustainability profile compared to the benchmark by promoting certain sustainability characteristics within the meaning of Article 8 of the European Sustainable Finance Disclosure Regulation and integrating sustainability in the investment process. More specifically, the binding elements as per the prospectus and sustainability disclosure (SFDR disclosure) pertain to applying the Robeco Level 2 exclusion list, targeting a Sustainalytics ESG risk rating that is 10% better than the benchmark, excluding companies with Severe ESG risk (those with a Sustainalytics ESG Risk Rating of greater than 40) unless an investment in a stock with severe ESG risk has been explicitly approved by the dedicated committee comprising sustainable investment, compliance, and risk management specialists overseeing the bottom-up sustainability assessment, and pursuing 30% better carbon footprint than the benchmark as well as 20% better waste and water footprints than the benchmark.
