ROBECO HIGH YIELD BONDS

Wider Spreads as Bond Supply Rises

ROBECO
The Investment Engineers

- Credit spreads widened as rising issuance outpaced demand
- Global tensions lifted oil prices with central banks holding rates
- The portfolio stayed defensive with a bias towards higher-quality bonds

The global high yield bond market faced a challenging October, with spreads widening significantly and yields rising. Renewed escalation of the Iran war and sharply higher oil prices weighed on sentiment. Disappointing US employment data contrasted with stronger economic growth, supported by resilient business investment. The Federal Reserve and ECB kept rates unchanged, with the latter signalling comfort with a pause as inflation tracked expectations. New issuance continued, with substantial USD bond volumes recorded over the month.

Market developments

In October, spreads widened significantly by 37bps to 352bps, while yield to worst rose by 8bps to 8.05%. The Iran war re-escalated during the month, as reports of planned US strikes after the midterm elections drove Brent crude up more than 13% to a six-month high above $117/bbl. In the US, delayed September payrolls showed an increase of just 29,000, below expectations, while July and August figures were revised down by a combined 60,000. Unemployment held at 4.2%, pointing to a 'low-hire, low-fire' labour market rather than outright weakening. Q3 GDP surprised sharply to the upside at 3.4% annualised, ahead of the 3.1% consensus and up from 2.2% in Q2, driven by continued strength in business investment. The FOMC held rates at 3.75–4.00% at its October meeting, and USD bond issuance totalled $85.3bn over the month. In Europe, the ECB held rates at 2.50% in October following September's hike, with Lagarde signalling that the bank was comfortable pausing for now as inflation was tracking close to projections.

Portfolio positioning

The fund's largest rating overweight is in BBB-rated bonds, while its largest underweights are in CCC-rated, B-rated and CC-rated bonds. Credit beta is 0.93, indicating a slightly lower risk stance than the benchmark, and remained broadly unchanged over the month.

The fund's largest sector overweights are in banking, basic industry and consumer non-cyclical, while its largest underweights are in communications, technology and consumer cyclical. Exposure to capital goods increased during the month.

The fund's largest issuer positions include Ardagh (OW), an Irish packaging group; Stellantis (OW), a Netherlands-based carmaker; Virgin Media (UW), a British telecommunications provider; and Charter Communications (UW), a US cable and telecommunications company.

Performance

In October, the portfolio outperformed the benchmark by 47 bps, the benchmark itself returned -0.23% over the month. Credit excess returns were strongly negative, while underlying rates made a positive contribution, with the 10-year US yield falling by almost 30 bps to 4.92%.

Issuer selection added 23 bps to performance, while beta positioning contributed 24 bps. The EUR high yield market, where the portfolio has significant overweights, underperformed the USD market. Higher-quality credits delivered the best risk-adjusted returns, contributing to the portfolio's outperformance.

From a sector perspective, underweights in communications and transportation contributed 23 bps and 4 bps, respectively, while underweights in technology and capital goods detracted 4 bps and 5 bps. The underweight in VMED contributed 7 bps, as the CMA's opposition to the Netomnia deal put GBP 950m of expected deleveraging proceeds at risk, increasing restructuring concerns. The underweight in Altice USA detracted 4 bps, as progress towards a creditor-led restructuring improved expectations for a consensual deal and bondholder recoveries.

Year to date, the index posted a credit return of -0.65% as credit spreads widened from 273 bps to 352 bps. The EUR-hedged total return was -1.07%, as underlying government bond yields increased. The fund returned 0.04%, outperforming by 112 bps. Credit performance (+117 bps) was the main contributor, driven by issuer selection (+87 bps) and supported by beta (+31 bps). Within allocation effects, currency selection (-7 bps) detracted, reflecting the overweight in EUR and underweight in USD. Sector selection (+38 bps) was supportive, led by the underweight in communications, with overweights in basic industry, banking and insurance, and underweights in transportation and other utilities also contributing. Rating allocation (+33 bps) added value, driven by underweights in CCC and CC, alongside the overweight in BBB and underweight in D. The main contributors year to date were the underweight in Virgin Media (+20 bps), the avoidance of CSC Holdings LLC / Altice (+12 bps) and the overweight in INEOS Ltd (+10 bps). The main detractors were the exit from Mercer International Inc in the first quarter (-10 bps) and the position in Sappi Ltd (-9 bps).

Outlook

High yield spreads began to widen in the final week of September after reaching historically tight levels through much of the third quarter. While this has provided some relief from squeezed valuations, spreads still leave limited room for disappointment. The main support for the market comes from strong company fundamentals. Balance sheets remain healthy, earnings are resilient and many issuers are positioned to absorb a challenging financing environment.

At the same time, market technicals are becoming less supportive. Bond scarcity is giving way to bond abundance as financing needs related to AI infrastructure and capital investment increase issuance. With demand no longer providing a tailwind, a heavier primary calendar into year-end could put further pressure on spreads and create greater differentiation across issuers. Ongoing uncertainty around global trade policy, fiscal sustainability and geopolitical developments also argues against complacency at current spread levels.

Against this backdrop, we expect returns to be driven primarily by carry and issuer selection rather than renewed broad-based spread tightening. We therefore maintain a cautious stance and continue to move up in quality. Stronger issuers should remain resilient, while lower-rated and highly leveraged companies face increasing refinancing pressure. Further spread widening, without a comparable deterioration in fundamentals, would create a more attractive opportunity to add risk.
