Morningstar Analyst Rating

Morningstar evaluates mutual funds based on five key pillars, which its analysts believe lead to funds that are more likely to outperform over the long term on a risk-adjusted basis.

Analyst Rating Spectrum

08 Oct, 2015 | The fund invests primarily in European and US high-yield bonds. It is managed by lead manager Sander Bus and comanager Roeland Moraal. They are both highly experienced and have been working together on this fund since 2003. Bus has been involved with the fund since its launch (1998) and became lead manager in 2001. They are supported by a team of 13 corporate-bond analysts. We appreciate the fact that the managers invest in their own fund. In our view, this ensures that the interests of the investors and the managers are better aligned.

In the investment process, the emphasis is placed on bottom-up selection and to a lesser extent on top-down allocation. Robeco's Quarterly Credit Outlook forms the starting point here. This serves as the input for determining the portfolio beta (market sensitivity). The bottom-up selection process relies on qualitative analysis as well as a quantitative selection model. The process allows the managers a relatively large amount of freedom to invest according to their own conviction. Among other things, they can invest off-benchmark, in investment-grade bonds, but also in financials. However, we find that the fund has a solid risk management strategy.

The fund boasts a long and solid track record. With an annual return of 6.76%, the fund has managed, since the appointment of Bus as the lead manager, to outperform the category (5.25%) by 1.51% per year up to the end of September 2015. Compared with the category, there are relatively few investments in financials. This means there can be some divergence in the returns achieved. The track record--corrected for risk--is above average compared with the category. Viewed over three and 10 years, the fund is ranked in the top quartile in terms of returns. In both 2014 and 2015, the preference for quality paper and the underweightings in the energy and mining sectors made a positive contribution. Because of the stable and experienced management team, the solid track record, and the low costs, we are maintaining our Morningstar Analyst Rating of Silver.

The emphasis is placed on bottom-up selection and to a lesser extent on top-down allocation.

Process Pillar + Positive

08 Oct, 2015 | Robeco's Quarterly Credit Outlook forms the starting point here. This serves as the input for determining the portfolio beta (market sensitivity) and region and sector allocation. The universe is divided up into three segments. A qualitative approach is employed for large caps and private small caps. Here the analyst team studies strategic; financial; and environmental, social, and governance factors as well as the company structure. This analysis results in a score, and an opinion is issued (overweight, underweight, or neutral) on the basis of a valuation. For the third segment (listed small caps), a quantitative selection model is employed. Here, companies are ranked on the basis of financial factors, momentum, and valuation. Ultimate bond selection is the responsibility of the managers. The process gives them a relatively large degree of freedom. This means it is possible to make off-benchmark investments in investment-grade bonds (up to approximately 10%), financials (up to approximately 5%), and asset-backed securities (up to approximately 1%). Furthermore, derivatives are often employed. We believe that sound risk management is in place and that a disciplined process is employed. Close attention is also paid to country risks. No active duration policy is pursued, and the currency exposure is fully hedged into euros.

Although the benchmark does not include any financials, it is possible to invest in these to a limited extent.

Process Pillar + Positive

08 Oct, 2015 | The wave of selling within the high-yield segment in the summer of 2014 was used to add more risk by means of a slightly heavy beta position. This overweighting was gradually reduced to neutral in early 2015 as a result of rising valuations. The preference for European over US high-yield bonds is being maintained because of sustained quantitative easing and because Europe is at a less advanced stage of the credit cycle. In terms of its rating distribution, the fund has been positioned defensively in relation to the benchmark for some time. As at September 2015, for example, it had an overweighting in bonds with a BBB credit rating, while having an underweighting in B and CCC rated bonds. The manager believes that investors in lower segments are not sufficiently compensated for the risk. Limited investments are made in off-benchmark investment-grade paper (≥ BBB-). Although the benchmark does not contain financials, the manager may invest in these if he considers this opportune. At present, 2% of the portfolio is invested in financials. From a bottom-up perspective, the fund has significant underweightings in the energy and communication sectors. Many companies in the energy sector, particularly in the US, have high debt levels and are very much reliant on the oil price. In December, however, Sander Bus added a number of quality names from this sector with low production costs and/or limited debts.

Since the arrival of Sander Bus, the annual average returns have outperformed the category.

Performance Pillar + Positive

08 Oct, 2015 | The fund boasts a long and solid track record. With an annual return of 6.76%, the fund has managed, since the appointment of Sander Bus as the head manager (September 2001), to outperform the Global High Yield Bond--EUR Hedged Morningstar Category (5.25%) by 1.51% per year up to the end of September 2015.

Compared with the category, there are relatively few investments in financials. This means there can be some divergence in the returns achieved. Bond selection, followed by beta positioning, generally makes the greatest contribution to returns, in line with the fund's philosophy. Under Bus the standard deviation is slightly higher than the category, but the downside risk is a little lower. All in all, the fund has an average risk profile. The track record--corrected for risk--is above average compared with the category. Viewed over three and 10 years, the fund is ranked in the top quartile in terms of returns, outperforming 83% and 76% of its peers, respectively. Compared with the benchmark, the fund has performed fairly consistently over five and 10 years, with underperformance of 30 to 50 basis points per year. In the recovery year of 2009, the fund benefited greatly from its more offensive positioning, enabling it to match the benchmark on a 10-year basis. In both 2014 and 2015, the preference for quality paper and the underweightings in the energy and mining sectors made a positive contribution.

The experienced Sander Bus has been lead manager of this fund since 2001.

People Pillar + Positive

08 Oct, 2015 | We hold lead manager Sander Bus and comanager Roeland Moraal in high regard. Both managers are highly experienced, and they have been working together on this fund since 2003. The lead manager has been involved in the fund since the very beginning (1998), first as comanager and, since 2001, as lead manager.

Over this period he has built up a strong track record. Bus has been working in the field of fixed-income securities since beginning his career in 1996 and has extensive experience in high-yield bonds. He started out at Rabobank, where he worked as a bond analyst. In 1998 he made the switch to Robeco High Yield Bonds, becoming lead manager in 2001. Bus was appointed as head of Robeco's Credit Team in 2007. Comanager Moraal has been involved in the industry since 1997. He began his career as an analyst at Robeco before switching to the role of bond manager and subsequently becoming a high-yield bond manager in 2003. Bus and Moraal take decisions on the basis of consensus. During the bond-selection process, they are supported by an analyst team consisting of 13 corporate-bond analysts. The managers also often consult with specialist bond and equities teams within Robeco. We appreciate the fact that the managers invest in their own fund. In our view, this ensures that the interests of the investors and the managers are better aligned.

Robeco is purely focused on asset management and has been bought by Orix.

Parent Pillar

03 Sep, 2013 | Robeco is one of the oldest fund management companies in the Netherlands and is in the hands of Orix, which holds 90% of the shares. The other 10% is still in the hands of Rabobank, the previous owner of Robeco. It is too early for us to assess the possible consequences of the take-over for the funds and investment teams, but so far there have been no signals that would influence our opinion on Robeco. We know Robeco as a stable firm with a positive working environment that is focused on investments. In the past, Robeco did succeed in retaining the loyalty of its investment staff, with a strong foundation of managers who have been working there for many years. The company manages assets totalling EUR 189 billion, which is divided equally between private and institutional clients. Most of the funds are managed from Rotterdam, but there are also teams that operate from the US, Hong Kong, and Switzerland. In the past Robeco has launched many specialised funds that ultimately proved unsuccessful, and the number of funds has been reduced. The level of active management has increased through the years; fund managers are now allowed to deviate more from the benchmark than in the past. The cost level of the funds is generally lower than their respective category medians.
